THE CREATOR OF THE BURBANK POTATO

PASSES INTO THE UNKNOWN NO BELIEF IN HEREAFTER

The Plant Wizard, Luther Burbank, Turned His Attention To Plant Life After a Disappointment In Love and Gave This As a Real Reason For His Success. It Has Been Revealed--Deceased Was the Thirteenth Child of a Family of Fifteen.

Luther Burbank, withered by age, died Sunday at Santa Rosa, California, amid the flowering fruits and blooms that he created for mankind's benefit. The noted horticulturist passed on to the great adventure of a hereafter in which he had no faith.

Only a few weeks before the end of the great plant wizard had declared that he could not believe in a life after death.

And as life ebbed away and he stood at the brink he did not falter in his convictions.

Infirm and worn after years devoted to developing and guiding plant life the controversy started by his pronouncements on religion and reincarnation contributed to his illness.

A storm of protest came from religious leaders after Mr. Burbank gave out his statement declaring himself to be an infidel. His home was swamped with letters and telegrams condemning his stand. The stress he was subjected to in defending and explaining his beliefs brought on a nervous condition that his 77 years could not survive.

A few minutes before life fled the aged patient lapsed into semi-consciousness.

"Oh, doctor, I am very sick," were his last words. They were uttered to his physician, Dr. Joseph H. Shaw.

Gastro-intestinal complications and violent hiccupping had weakened Mr. Burbank.

All hope for him was given up after a two weeks' struggle by physicians to prolong his life.

At the bedside were his wife and sister, Mrs. Emma Beeson, of Healdsburg.

Edgar A. Waite of the San Francisco Bulletin, revealed that he had obtained an interview with Mr. Burbank to be used only after his death. In which the scientist said the real reason for his success as a plant culturist was a disappointment in love many years ago. This, he told Mr. Waite, turned his energies and his genius into what became his life's work that made him famous.

It was announced Sunday night that public memorial services will be held at 4 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon at Doyle park, amid the flowers and trees where Mr. Burbank had spent so many pleasant hours with friends.

Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of the Denver juvenile court, for long years a close friend, will deliver the eulogy. This is in keeping with a promise made some time ago by the judge. Rev. Caleb S. Dutton, pastor of the First Unitarian church of San Francisco, who officiated at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Burbank 10 years ago also will speak.

Mr. Burbank came of a family of Unitarians, and both he and his wife were members of that denomination at the time of his death.

It is tentatively agreed that the final resting place of the plant scientist will be in his garden among the flowers to whom he had given most of the years of his life.

Early in life Burbank evinced a great love for growing things, selecting plants rather than animals as his pets. His first notable success was achieved at the age of 22, when he happened to find a seed ball of Early Rose potato, which rarely bears seed. From this he developed the world famous Burbank potato that has spread to every portion of the globe and which is said to exert a greater influence upon the food supply of humanity than any other single food plant.

Soon after breeding this potato, which brought him neither fame nor money at the time, Burbank moved to California, where he obtained employment as a farm hand. He continued as a laborer until able to acquire a small farm in the town of Santa Rosa. With this small beginning he undertook the series of experiments which long had been uppermost in his mind. Thereafter his work was continuous and tireless occupying nearly 14 hours a day on the average.

Burbank was born at Lancaster, Massachusetts, March 7, 1849. He was the thirteenth of 15 children born on his father's 200 acre farm.

E. R. DEFFENBAUGH FILES SUIT
The Roseville Brick plant purchased by the state and to be operated by convicts, became involved in litigation again Friday. Emmett R. Deffenbaugh, Lancaster, a stockholder of the Tri-County Paving Brick Co., which was merged with the Roseville plant and the consolidated company sold, filed suit asking that the deed to the state be set aside.

A similar action brought by William C. Nothstine of Pickaway county was settled recently.

Deffenbaugh claimed the transfer of the Tri-County company to the Roseville company was illegal.—Lancaster Eagle.

WHEAT THEFT TWO YOUNG MEN PLEAD GUILTY

Court Sentences on Robert Speakman and Donald Carmean Deferred.

Robert Speakman, 22, and Donald Carmean, 18, jointly indicted with Holly Ankrom, an older man, with breaking into the Brundige grain elevator at Kinnickinnick, and stealing some 25 bushels of wheat, valued at about $42, both plead guilty, this morning when arraigned before Judge Blosser. Their sentences were deferred until after the trial of Ankrom, next week, on the plea of not guilty that Ankrom entered Friday.

Both Speakman and Carmean told the same story of having been the "tool" of Ankrom in this theft. They said Ankrom had found them in a pool room and suggested that they steal the wheat and take it in his truck to Circleville and sell it to Crites; that they did break into the elevator, as suggested by Ankrom, loaded it into Ankrom's truck, kept the truck all night in Ankrom's garage and that Speakman then drove the truck to Circleville, where it broke down before it was delivered, the wheat was unloaded that suspicion that all was not right, was then excited, and that notification of the officers and the arrests followed.

Appeals for leniency towards the neys, John P. Phillips Jr., for Speakman, John P. Phillips Jr., for Carmean, and Charles E. Capple for Carmean, mainly on the ground that they were "used" by Ankrom, an older man. A special appeal was made for Carmean on account of his general good character and the standing of his family and that his father needs him on the farm. "I therefore ask for another chance for Donald, said Attorney Capple.—Scioto Gazette.

THE JAZZ KING TED LEWIS TO BE ON SCREEN

Will Launch Into Glittering
Galaxy of Stars Who
Parade Before Kings.

Ted Lewis, better known in Pickaway and Ross counties by the family name of Friedman, is about to launch himself into the glittering galaxy of stars that parade before the "Kliegs." In other words Ted Lewis is now in Hollywood making screen tests in preparation for his appearance in the title role of "The Jazz King." A scenario based on a story written about Lewis by Edgar Allan Woolf, author of numerous vaudeville sketches and musical comedy books.

Lewis is at present engaged on a little tour of the Orpheum circuit of 20 weeks in preparation to a summer London engagement. The screen debut of "The Jazz King" is scheduled for this fall following the London appearance.

The story for the screen play is taken for a great part, from the boyhood days of Lewis. Incidents such as the time that he was thrown out of the boys' band at Circleville for unorthodox musical methods and his first appearances as a musician for dances in Chillicothe and Circleville will be included in the story of the picture.—News-Advertiser.

Bremen — An overheated stove started a fire Sunday, which destroyed the arm home of W. T. Reese, near here, causing a loss of $3,500.

EXPERT TELLS HOW TO LIFT A TRUNK

Heavy Weights Can Be Carried Easily By Using the Thigh Muscle.

An undersized, puny expressman comes trotting along with a trunk three times his own weight on his back. You are amazed at the great strength of such a slight fellow. Yet it is not a question of strength entirely. He has learned by long experience how to lift and carry weights.

For many years, Dr. J. F. Williams, professor of physical training at Columbia University, New York, has studied this interesting subject, and in the April issue of Popular Science Monthly he gives some of the secrets of lifting heavy objects.

"The strongest muscles in the body," he explains, "are the heavy thigh muscles. These should be used in lifting whenever possible. The shoulders, too, can be used. Don't stoop and expect your arm muscles, supported by the back, to lift a heavy weight. The weight at the end of the arms is at the end of a long lever with fulcrum at the pelvis, and the mechanical disadvantage is terrific.

"To pick up a weight, squat with back straight. Grasp the object, then straighten up, and the whole work of lifting will be done by the legs.

"Always keep a weight as close to the body as possible. When you can, get the weight on top of your own. Another good idea is to follow the Oriental's plan of balancing weights. If you are planning a long trip, for example, buy two suitcases instead of one and distribute your load.

"The professional trunk mover never strains his back, because he doesn't use his back. He rests the weight on his thigh muscles, the strongest in the body. If you have a trunk to move, roll it around on its corners. If this might cause damage to the floors, then lift it by the use of your legs. Remember that a slight mistake in lifting may cause injury to your whole body."

WEALTHY OHIO CITIZEN IS INSTANTLY KILLED

Chicago, April 9.—(UP.)—While flames across the widow ledge seared his fingers, Louis J. Ainsworth, wealthy head of a Cincinnati, Ohio, radio manufacturing company early today hung for five minutes from the 19th story window of the Morris hotel, and then dropped to the ground—dying instantly.

Ainsworth's drop was the culmination of five minutes of feverish attempted rescue work during which two men risked their lives and dozens of others attempted to rescue the man.

RADIO MESSAGES TO OTHER WORLDS?

Recent discoveries, made known by the president of England's Royal Astronomical society, indicate that the little dark star on which we live is situated not far from the center of the greater universe, something man in his conceited ignorance has always believed. . . . For every sun, or twinkling star in space, there are many more dark stars or planets, which shine, if at all, by reflected light. This destroys one of primitive man's illusions that the sky and sun and stars were all created for the benefit of himself and his fellows alone. In these millions of unseen worlds there must be others similarly situated as our earth, on which the same forms of life have appeared and exist. One of these days radio may be perfected to the point where the people on one planet may exchange messages with those on another. It is a far-distant probability but not an impossibility.—Capper's Weekly.

He Was a Nugget-Seeker

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

"GO! GO to—Halt! Anywhere out of my sight!" Myrtle stormed.

Drury, her young sister, laughed teasingly as she flung back: "Thanky! But Minge Junction is plenty bad enough. Whatever made you camp in it, Sis Flower?"

"Shut up! Let me think!" Myrtle hissed through set teeth.

Drury had the money—rather her guardian did. The pair were half-sisters. Myrtle, exquisitely dark, slender and graceful as her name flower, with the accentings of velvet-dark eyes and red-coral lips, fiery, selfish, dominant, was ill-cast in the role of dependent. Drury was fat, but not placid. A shrewd bargainer, she was relentless in keeping bargains once made. Her mother, grandchild of plain folk, had mysteriously inherited a half million. It had bought her a husband, in the person of a renowned yet fascinating spendthrift.

When she was killed in a runaway accident two years later cynics said one to another: "The luck of Drury Greer!" He had been left very handsomely provided for—with only that lump of a baby, named for him, as the fly in the ointment.

Drury inherited all her mother's longing for power and high place. At ten, when her father died, leaving Myrtle scant tangible assets, she had driven her first bargain. Myrtle was to stay on, keeping the home up to Greer level, until Drury, properly trained and polished, had been launched socially and put in the way of making a brilliant marriage—this in return for a life of easy luxury.

Child that she was, Drury had realized this was her only chance. She had no background—all her mother's people were dead. Luckily—in a way. The money bought her only a sort of shamed tolerance from the Greers. All that is, but Myrtle—who albeit she stormed and raved sometimes, stood loyally to her promise despite the protests of Greers, and Laeys, her mother's kindred. Her heart had for two years belonged absolutely to one Elliot Lane, a masterful person, restive at waiting longer for his love.

It was this that had moved Myrtle to the desperate venture of Minge Junction—a place she had been told where money counted for everything. At home folk were barely civil to Drury now just turned seventeen. Despite the long bickerings, the stormy outbreaks, Myrtle had somewhat of sisterly love for the lone creature. Until she saw her in the way of being safely married she could not feel that she had a right to her own happiness.

They had come a day back to the gorgeous hotel. But as yet they themselves had not been seen. Raymond Carr, Esq., stood as a lion in the path. He was a sort of human Blue Book, knowing all about everything, everybody, all the nice points of usage. Why, Oh! Why had Fate sent him here? Myrtle had met him casually in her first winter out. He had declined to keep up the acquaintance, telling her hostess: "She is too beautiful—unless she had the million." Poor, fat, free-spoken Drury would be fair game for him.

Drury had vanished. Myrtle sat pondering a quick vanishing by the night train. She started to ring up the office and say so, but sat down almost fainting at what she saw through the open balcony window. Drury, bareheaded, standing mighty straight, facing Raymond Carr. He was smiling down at her—as he rarely had smiled at anything feminine. She had given him the thrill of his life—in blue linen, her broad cheeks richly pink, her clear blue eyes dancing, sandy tendrils clinging to her white forehead, she was an adorable milkmaid. To his dismay he had heard himself asking her: "Would you like a spin to the lake this morning?" And had been answered brightly: "Too late. Mister Man. Sis Flower wrote for a car as well as rooms. I'm sorry—real sorry she did."

She left him no time for debate, running on: "If the hotel car turns out to be just ordinary, won't you please see that we have a better one, please see that we have a better one."

"I shall see to it that you get it," Carr returned smiling broadly. "Even though I'm only a guest—like yourself."

"Oh! Mercy me! And I took you for a livery man," Drury interrupted, her cheeks true scarlet.

"Let's not spoil things by apologies," he said, touching her arm lightly. "No—don't tell me your name—I want to find it out for myself."

"I'd rather tell you—maybe you won't want to ask—when you hear it," Drury said humbly. "I'm Drury Greer. You—you must know all about me."

She was infinitely appealing—even to a human Blue Book. Raymond Carr took her hand, saying with a dazed smile: "Suppose we go find Sis Flower and ask her to chaperone us for a ride."

"You—you aren't fooling!" she asked breathlessly. He looked her full in the face, questioning: "Why should I be?"

"Oh! Because—because nobody ever before seemed to like me," Drury said huskily. "A girl at school said I'd never get a husband, unless he was hunting for gold nuggets."

"I am just that sort," Carr answered, trying to speak lightly. "But please to remember—there is more than one sort of gold."

Working Model of Solar System Built by Allen

Chicago.—A mechanical model of the solar system which, according to Professor F. R. Moulton, head of the department of astronomy at the University of Chicago, shows more of the facts of the motion of the earth and moon than any similar machine, is the result of seven years' spare time labor by Diego Arzie, a Jugo-Slav immigrant.

Arzie was educated as a mechanical engineer at the Technical School of Marine Engineering at Pola, Jugo-Slavia, and came to Chicago in 1912. Changing to read a book on astronomy, he became intrigued by the mechanics of the universe and determined to construct an accurate model in miniature.

He spent three years of minute calculations before he began constructing his model. The work itself required four years' labor in the little shop, at the rear of his home here, with the simplest of tools. He frequently worked all night, refusing to stop even for meals.

An electric-lighted ball represents the sun in Arzie's machine. The machine is motivated by a clock, registering central time, the day, month and year, and operating 110 gears that control movements ranging in time from one minute to 12,500 years. Thus, the position of the models at a given second corresponds to that of the planets, and the movements of the moon around the earth and the earth around the sun are portrayed with correct periods and eccentricities. The entire mechanism is mounted on an elliptical frame nine feet in diameter.

LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

BOY SCOUT TROOPS
IN LEGION POSTS
Plans calling for the sponsoring of
a boy scout troop by each of the 10,000
American Legion posts of the nation.
training of Legion scout masters to conduct the troops and the formation of a national Legion boy scout organization to expand further the Legion's
co-operation with the Boy Scouts of America, were launched recently.
A national committee to carry out
the plans is being formed with H. D.
McBride of St. Louis, scout commissioner, as chairman.
The Legion's scout organization will consist of post, state, regional and national committees. Every Legion post
will be encouraged to organize a boy scout troop. The committees will place definite emphasis on the camping out
and outdoor activities of scouting.
Where practicable, Legionnaires will attend scout training courses before assuming positions of active scout leadership.
Posts of the Legion will promote,
provide or conduct permanent and
temporary boy scout camps in every community, according to established standards. They will assist in organizing and conducting week-end hikes,
rallies, athletic exhibitions and field
events.
The Legion during the past three years has formed or sponsored 1,000
scout troops in the country.
"A special effort will be made to reach under-privileged boys, or those who ordinarily have no opportunity to join troops affiliated with churches,
schools, etc.," declared Mr. McBride.

Millions of Dollars
for Disabled Veterans
Fifty-five thousand World war veterans and their dependents had received additional benefits approximat-
ing twenty-nine millions of dollars
under the provisions of the Reed-
Johnson bill, sponsored by the American Legion, and its amendments up to the beginning of the year 1926, according to advices from Legion service officials in Washington.
Approximately 30,000 of the 55,000
persons benefiting under the law had never before received compensation
from the government in any form,
and the others profited on account of
increased payments.
Hundreds of thousands of cases
that were lying untouched in the Veterans' bureau owing to the inadequacy of the law previous to the passage of
the Reed-Johnson bill on June 7, 1924,
are now being reviewed.
Veterans or their dependents have already benefited as follows: 12,000
tubercular veterans were awarded $13,000,000 in compensation; mentally incompetent veterans were compensated at a cost of $7,500,000; dependents of disabled veterans numbering 4,336 received $300,497 additional allowances and 12,344 dependents of dead veterans received increased allowances amounting to $1,154,280 for the care of 394 veterans and nearly a million dollars in compensation was awarded to 800 veterans suffering
from so-called "wilful misconduct"
diseases.

Award Legion Medals
to School Graduates
Grammar school boys of the nation who best exemplify the qualities
of courage, scholarship, leadership, service and honor will be awarded American Legion medals upon graduation.
The national executive committee
of the Legion has authorized posts
throughout the nation to award the medals in connection with the Legion's national program of cultivating good citizenship.
The American Legion Auxiliary has authorized a medal to be presented to girls under conditions similar to those which govern the Legion award
to boys. Posts may secure the Legion school medals through the Emblem division, national headquarters,
Indianapolis, Ind.

Reasonable Explanation
A negro laborer had just fallen from the heights of a tall building being constructed. Head first and like a projectile he crashed downward and
disappeared through an opening in the sidewalk connecting with the basement. The foreman rushed down, expecting to find a mangled corpse, but instead discovered Jazzbo reposing in
a mass of waste paper.
"Man!" gasped the foreman, "how did you manage to escape being killed?"
"Boss, Ah dunno," groaned Jazzbo,
rubbing his head. "Ceptin' dat cement
sidewalk must of broke mah fall."—

Built an Airport
When it was pointed out that Boise,
Idaho, needed an airport and the grounds for the port had been donated but no funds were available to build
it, the local post of the American Legion said: "We'll build it." They did build it and now Boise's airport is receiving the fleets of the air.

Elderly Picture Actress
Hollywood's most ambitious "extra" is ninety. She is Mary Holden, born in Rutland, Vt. Every day she appears at casting offices looking for "odd bits" in motion picture and more often than not she obtains employment. "I never thought about acting until I was eighty," she declared. "Now I think it is wonderful. I want to play in 100 pictures before I die. I will never be too old to get parts. In my case, the older I am, the better."

Take "Picture Brides"
To console the solitary young Japanese bachelors settled in South America, the consul of that country at Sao Paulo, Brazil, has undertaken to encourage the immigration of picture brides. According to Miyako, 3,000 of these brides have registered for passage to Brazil, 3,000 for Argentina, 2,000 for Mexico, and a smaller number for other destinations on this side of the Atlantic.—Living Age.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

General Happenings Taken From the Records of the Various County Offices.

Court of Appeals.
The court of appeals convenes Wednesday, April 14, with Judge Roscoe Mauck, of Gallipolis; Edward D. Sayre, of Athens and W. H. Middleton, of Waverly, on the bench.

The following cases are on the docket:
William H. Orebaugh against Charles K. Rager, on error. Snyder & Miller represent the plaintiff and Adkins & Webber the defendant.

Charles Mounjoy against John Weaver, on error. Charles Dresbach represents the plaintiff and Charles Gerhardt and Barton Walters the defendant.

Ida Flint against the Scioto Valley Traction & Power company on error. Abernethy & Simkins represent the plaintiff. Charles Gerhardt and Oscar W. Newman, of Columbus, represent the defendant.

Declared Dead.
David Marion, the aged father of Amos F. Marion, has filed a petition in probate court, declaring to the best of his knowledge and belief, that his son, who disappeared June 17, 1917, is dead.

The young man left in 1912, but his father learned of his whereabouts through letters he received for him several years afterwards, but has heard nothing from him since 1917. The last letter told of his joining the navy and of serving his time and receiving his discharge. It is thought that he may have joined the army, and is now sleeping among the silent dead as an unknown, nameless soldier.

The father, bent with years, was in the city Saturday. He is patriarchal looking, and if he stood erect, would be six feet and one inch tall. He lives just west of the Mackay Ford bridge in Scioto township on a piece of land he cleared for Gilbert Humble. He loves the woods and has always worked in the open. He loves the outdoors especially the big trees, which he calls his friends.

Mr. Marion has been carrying an insurance policy on his son's life for a number of years and the declaration had to made to legally obtain the money on the policy.

Suit For Money.
Jacob Young and Flora Murray, executors of the estate of Henry Phillips, deceased, have filed a civil action against George W. Coakley and Nellie F. Coakley for money and foreclosure, amount claimed $100 and interest at six per cent from June 24, 1924. George G. Adkins, Barton Walters and C. A. Weldon represent the plaintiff.

Divorce Granted.
A divorce was granted in probate court by Judge Adkins to John Hatfield from Florence Hatfield on the grounds of gross neglect of duty and adultery. The defendant was given the custody of their only child, a girl. I. F. Snyder represented the plaintiff.

Suit For Divorce.
Edna B. Sheppard, an infant, by her next friend, Stephen Bennett, has filed a suit in probate court for divorce from Leroy Sheppard. The couple were married September 15, 1924, in this city. She charges her husband with gross neglect and with consorting with other women. At the January term of court he was convicted of grand larceny and was sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory. She asks to be restored to her maiden name, Edna Bennett. C. A. Weldon represents the plaintiff.

Breeders Try to Improve Flocks

More Interest Developed in Production of High Egg-Laying Strains.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

For many years the efforts of poultry breeders to improve their flocks were confined largely to breeding for the type and color demanded by the "Standard of Perfection," and little attention was paid to developing high egg production. In the last few years, however, more interest has developed in the production of high egg-laying strains.

Production and Quality.
To show that high egg production and good standard quality can be combined to a high degree in chickens, and to encourage breeding along these lines, was the purpose of the exhibit displayed by the United States Department of Agriculture at the Madison Square garden poultry show held in New York city a few weeks ago.

The male birds of the department's exhibit were all of excellent standard quality and were bred from hens which had laid from 200 to 250 eggs in their pullet year. Most of them had a pedigree which included several generations of producers of 200 eggs or more. The exhibit included male birds of the Barred Plymouth Rock breed, the Rhode Island Red breed, and the White Leghorn breed, demonstrating that high egg production is not confined to the White Leghorns.

Breeding for Eggs.
Breeding fowls for high-egg production was given a great stimulus by the inauguration of egg-laying contests in this country about 15 years ago. These contests are now being held in every section of the country. A number of hens entered in these official contests have laid more than 300 eggs in one year. The highest producing hens are now coming from flocks which have been pedigree bred for egg production for a period of years. A large per cent of the hens entered in these contests are White Leghorns, but just as large egg records have been made by other popular breeds, such as Plymouth Rock, Rhode Island Red, and Wyandotte.

Gypsum Considered as a Direct Soil Fertilizer

Gypsum, according to Iowa tests, does not have the ability to neutralize acid soils even though it does contain calcium the same as limestone. It has no alkalinity, and, therefore, cannot take the place of limestone. On the other hand, gypsum does not have any injurious effect on the soil, as is sometimes believed, the Iowa station says. Gypsum should be considered as a direct fertilizer, as it supplies calcium and sulphur to plants. It also has some value in certain soils as an indirect fertilizer, for laboratory experiments have shown that it has the property of making native potassium available to plants, and hence, might, in some cases, take the place of expensive potassium fertilizers. The bulletin covering this work may be had by writing for No. 232, bulletin section, Iowa State college, Ames, Iowa.

Sowing Scarified Sweet Clover Seed in Pasture

Sweet clover may be sown in an old pasture by sowing scarified seed during the early spring, and covering the seed with a disk or harrow, or by allowing the stock to trample the seed in. It can also be seeded by sowing the unscarified seed during the late fall months, or even during the winter when the ground is not covered with snow. It should be kept in mind that sweet clover is quite sensitive to acid soils, and that when seeding in an old pasture the young sweet clover plants must compete with the sod that has already become established. Better stands are usually secured when the ground is plowed and the sweet clover seeded with a small grain crop.

Farm Hints

A load of lime makes good ballast on the trip home from town.

The biggest profits in farming go to the man who watches the so-called little things.

When planting seed potatoes be sure that it is good seed, free from diseases that will ruin crop and profit.

The bee keeper who made the right provisions for his apiary last fall needs to give slight thought to them this spring.

The European corn borer spends about 11 months out of the year as a caterpillar in the green and dried stocks of corn.

Helpers that are due to freshen in the spring should be worked with a little, so that they will be used to having their udders handled.

Farm wages will probably be just as high this year as they have been the past two seasons, and especially will this be true of the eight-month man.

General expansion in agricultural production this year might place farmers in a less favorable economic position than at present, believe many agricultural economists.

Cheese as Aid to Beauty

Cheese, asserts Professor Sammls, is one of the most perfectly balanced foods, and it is an aid to beauty. The worst enemy to a sallow complexion is a bite of cheese taken regularly before going to bed. He refers to the fact that the girls living in the cheese-producing sections of Europe are noted for their beauty and clear complexion. They are perpetually beautiful because they use whey from new cheese as a lotion.—Pathfinder.

Pottery Arithmetic

In the great pottery industry of Staffordshire, England, a "dozen" may be any number from 1 to 72. All plates are 12 to the dozen, but cups and saucers are 36 and other small wares 18, 24, 36 up to 72, for some purposes. AMUSEMENTS

"Womanhandled," the answer to "Manhandled" by the same author, is the feature at the Met theater. Richard Dix is starred with Esther Ralston Margaret Morris, Edmund Breese and Ivan Simpson in the supporting cast. Directed by Gregory LaCava as his first picture for Paramount, "Womanhandled" tells a story of modern western ranch life—a farce comedy in which the star, as Bill Dana, an eastern "softly," hires himself to the wild and woolly west to make a real man of himself. There is, of course, a pretty girl behind it all—Miss Ralston who greatly admires men of "the great open spaces." The picture is taken up with how the star goes about winning the girl's heart when he arrives on his uncle's ranch in Arizona and finds that the west of yesterday and the west of today are entirely different.

How he goes about rearranging things, digging up "atmosphere" so as to make the ranch look like "the real thing" when the girl arrives to see her new made hero is a big laugh. And it's riot when the girl sees thru the scheme and prances off in a huff to "home and mother."

Rapid-fire comedy, warm romance and plenty of rousing action pack every foot of "Womanhandled." The title alone ought to be enough to get you in and, believe us, the picture will surely make you mighty glad you went.

"Womanhandled" is the type of clean, keen, wholesome material the whole family will enjoy.

Luther Reed wrote the screen play from Arthur Stringer's Saturday Evening Post story.

LIGHTHOUSE BLUES BANISHED BY RADIO

Music From Air Now Comes to Lonely Isles.

Boston.—Adoption of the radio by keepers of lighthouses and lightships has given brilliant touch to a new chapter in the romance of the Atlantic ocean.

Since the days when first wooden fires were kindled in the tower of Pharos light to warn and guide mariners entering the ancient harbor of Alexandria, the life of the lighthouse keeper has been one of dreary monotony and isolation.

For ages the keepers have tended their wooden fires, huge wax candles, oil, gas or electric lanterns, never allowing them to burn low or cease their flashing.

Pilots seeing the beacon altered their courses to steer clear of rocky ledge or treacherous hidden shoal. The keeper of the light watched their approach and followed their departure until the ship dropped below the horizon or its lights were extinguished in the dark of night, leaving only intensified solitude in its wake.

Even today visitors are almost unknown at many lights that dot New England's broken coast. Only an occasional visit by a tender ship that brings supplies breaks the monotony that makes all days seem as one. In bad weather the periods of isolation are liable to extend over months. Newspapers and magazines are weeks old and their news, as such, has long since ceased to be.

Their Greatest Boon.

It is not difficult, then, to believe with Capt. George E. Eaton, superintendent of the Second Lighthouse district, that radio has proven the greatest single boon to lighthouse keepers in generations.

The picture he lays before the land-lubber could have its setting in the desolate Great Point light, miles from the mainland, or in the famous Minot's ledge light that rises from the water without apparent support. Minot's foundation is cut in the solid rock of one of the most dangerous submerged ledges on the entire coast line.

The last visit of a tender is weeks back. Overhead the signal light flashes and blinks in unceasing rhythm. In the season of gales and out of the bleak north sweep unleashed winds that scourge the Atlantic and froth its surface in foam. Spray turns to ice and coats the glass protection around the flashing light with sleet. The observation loft whistles in the gale.

The keeper's "trick" is up and he is relieved by an assistant.

He now retires to his room. He turns a knob on his radio set. The scene shifts and forms a new picture. The winds subside and waves no longer pound. It is a peaceful night and strains of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" fill the room. Soon the leader of the Philharmonic orchestra in New York or Philadelphia surrenders his baton to a "jazz" outfit in Pittsburgh or Chicago. As for the news of the day, in fact, of the hour, he needs but turn his dial to another station and instantly he is listening to despatches that under ordinary circumstances he would not have known for weeks.

Nearly All Have Radio.

In all there are about 120 lights scattered along the Bay state coast. Of these, 60 are "watched" lights and some 75 keepers are employed to see that their beacons are kept burning. Most of them are illuminated by gas lanterns as lighthouse officials believe it to be even more dependable than electricity for their need.

Almost without exception these stations house one or more radio sets which the keepers themselves have purchased.

On board the lightships the change is even more pronounced and fascinating. There are 17 of these vessels bobbing at anchor at points of greatest hidden danger. Life on board them is more isolated than that of the lighthouse. One hundred and two miles off the coast is stationed the Nan-tucket shoals ship, the furthest-from-land lightship in the world. Fifteen men comprise its crew and it is often months at a time that they never see land.

Street Names, Like

Kins', May Live or Die

Baltimore, Md.—The longevity of the names of city streets is much like the longevity of family names, says a writer.

In some families a name is handed down unchanged from father to son; in others, the name is quickly lost through the marriage of daughters or perhaps dies through lack of living descendants.

So with the names of city streets. Some live sturdily on, others change frequently or are connected, link by link, with other streets, and the name of the most important of them becomes the name of several sections.

Take Broadway as an example of the changing names of thoroughfares. It was originally called "Point road." In course of time the "Point road" was called "Market" street, the thoroughfare was widened and the 29 blocks of stately avenue became known as Broadway.

Baltimore street has experienced three changes of name and has absorbed other titles.

Three jovially named alleys—Cider alley, Whisky alley and Bottle alley—adorn the map of 1801. Whisky alley has lost its identity, doubtless through interference of prohibition influence. Cider and Bottle alleys still gayly hold their own.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS GROW IN INTEREST

Powerful Sermons Delivered by Blind Preacher Sunday Morning and Night.

Two more inspiring sermons were given at the Evangelical church Sunday by Rev. Charles A. Glass.

Sunday morning the subject was "The Power That is Needed in the Church and in the Individual Life." Text: But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto Me both in Jerusalem and in all Judea and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." Acts 1:8.

How I wish in these days when men are seeking power, for some are seeking to become financially powerful some are seeking to become physically powerful, and some are seeking to become politically powerful, but oh, how I wish men and women would become just as anxious, yea more anxious to become spiritually powerful. For it is God's will that each of us should become powerful along the lines mentioned in this text. You notice he said "Shall" receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." There is no other means by which you and I can hope to have this power in our lives only as we open our hearts and receive the Holy Ghost.

Sunday Night.

"Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth."—Colossians 3:2.

There is a God-given tendency in human nature of which the enemy of our souls tries to take advantage. It is that tendency to become fascinated and fall in love with those things around us. I believe this is a God-given tendency.

There are many people who get their attention drawn in the right direction under some circumstance in life, but the apostle wants you to become more than merely interested for a little while. He wants you to SET your affections on thing above.

I have known people to withdraw their affections from things above and put that affection around a desire for earthly possessions. Then, I know of so many, especially among young people, to withhold their affections or withdraw their affections from things above and put it around a desire for fun. This old world is going mad over the amusement question. They are so anxious for something amusing that they have tried to draw it into the churches, and they have in many places done away with the gospel message; it has been set aside for something amusing.

Why should we set our affections on things above? When we are seeking to do this we are seeking to set the affections on a glorious prospect of one day being delivered from all that seems hard to endure in this life, and not only that, but we are also seeking to set the affections on the glorious hope of being reunited with those who have gone on before us. We are also seeking to set the affections on the glorious assurance of seeing Jesus.

Have you set your affections on the things above? I invite you to do it tonight.

Monday night is "Parents' Night." Everybody is invited and welcome and there will be good things in the message for all, but Rev. Glass wants to bring especially to the fathers and mothers of this community the greatest question that is facing fathers and mothers today.

Russian Tribe Long Isolated From World

Explorers fighting their way through the uncharted timber lands of northern Siberia came upon a tribe of Russians, who spoke an old archaic Slavonic and who had not heard of the Bolshevik revolution and neither of the last six or seven czars since Peter the Great. They lived completely isolated from the rest of the world. There was no knowledge of any of the great events of history, including Napoleon's march to Moscow, the Japanese war, which was fought almost within hearing of their habitat. In the middle of the jungle, the explorers came upon a completely rigged ship of the sixteenth century, probably of Dutch origin. There was no navigable river within miles and the suggestion is put forward that the ship was deposited so far inland by a huge tidal wave, as was the case with the ship that lies 16 miles from the coast on Java and which rests against the side of an extinct volcano and was carried inland by gigantic eruptions with accompanying tidal waves. —Pierre Van Paassen, in the Atlanta Constitution.

Movie Models Show Advance Modes in Feminine Fashions

of silver and black lace with fox bordering the neck and train. Next is an ultra-chic wrap for summer fashioned of fashionable cloth of gold with white fox collar and cuffs and finished with a gold ribbon band around the waistline. The bloused effect on this wrap is the newest edict from Paris.

The leaded evening frock next

this is interestingly fashioned with the slight blouse effect which is Fashion's newest note this season, with regular scallops on the hem of the skirt. It is developed of green satin and the beads are crystal applied in an all over pattern that is decidedly effective.

That colored rudies are particularly interesting is shown in the attractive chemise worn by Janice Peters at the extreme right. This is made of black and white georgette with a large embroidered rose on one side.

These fashions were specially designed and executed for the fashion parade in the spectacular "Monte Carlo" production, by Kathleen Kay, Maude Marsh and Andre Ani.

KENYON COLLEGEProfessor's Death Might Not Have Been Accidental—Another Wife In Case.

Gambier, April 9.—(U.P.)—The possibility that Professor Walter Denston, of Kenyon College, who died here last night from a gunshot wound, had another wife in England of which country he was a native, was investigated today by immigration authorities.

Thomas Thomas, director of the Cincinnati immigration bureau, said he had received a letter from Cecilia Denston, "of England," informing him that she was Denston's legal wife and that he had entered the United States with another woman.

Thomas revealed he received the letter last February and later communicated with Denston. The instructor, he said, wrote in reply that he had obtained a divorce from the English woman.

The immigration officer said he again wrote to "Mrs. Denston" in England and received a reply declaring that she had never been informed of the divorce proceedings and doubted that Denston had ever obtained a decree.

Elements of mystery surrounded the instructor's death today. He was found in a woodland Wednesday night, a bullet wound in his head. Earlier in the day he had told his wife he was going out to shoot at a target.

Police were inclined to scoff the theory that Denston shot himself accidentally. Denston was a World War veteran and had high standing in educational circles.

GOVERNOR PINCHOT

Of Pennsylvania Has Shied His Hat In the Ring For U. S. Senator.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 9.—(U.P.)—Governor Pinchot today announced that Attorney General Woodruff would confer immediately with District Attorney Fox of Philadelphia, to discuss action on forgeries and perjuries which the governor charged yesterday were committed in filing the nomination petitions of Congressman William S. Vare, of Philadelphia.

Vare, Pinchot and Senator Pepper seek the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator. The governor said the attorney general would try and make arrangements for a meeting with Fox tomorrow.

"I do not believe the public interest would be served by entering into a discussion of anything found in Mr. Pepper's petition," the governor said when asked if he would investigate the Pepper petitions.

"It would be as futile as talking of the last snowstorm, for Mr. Pepper's candidacy has melted away since the gang deserted him.

"I am fighting Vare and Vareism. These nominating petitions show the Vare gang in its true light. Let us keep to the main issue."

Tattooing No Longer Confined to Savages

The art of tattooing had its origin among the untutored and slightly cannibalistic natives of New Zealand and the South Pacific Islands. Conventionalized parrots and parrot-fish, and endless geometrical designs were tapped into the epidermis with crude instruments resembling a hammer and tongs, according to a writer in Vanity Fair.

The soot of the candle nut was mixed with coconut oil, rubbed on the bone needle points, and a hibiscus-wood mallet was then used to force the needles into the lady or gentleman who wished to be tattooed.

Tattooing has passed from the savage to the sailor, from the sailor to the landsman. It has percolated through the entire social stratum. Tattooing has received its credentials, and may now be found beneath many a tailored shirt.

REVEALS SECRET OF ROMANOV MALE HEIR

Merchant Says Russ Consul Sought "Magic" Water.

New York.—A fantastic "imperial secret" that had its inception on a New York farm and its conclusion in the court of the Romanovs has been told after 20 years of silence by Edward Hatch, a New York merchant, former member of the firm of Lord & Taylor. The story began in 1903. The ill luck of the Romanov dynasty restrained Mr. Hatch from revealing it for many years. Then it grew dim in memory and retrospection made its details even seem more improbable. He continued to keep quiet until a few days ago when, he said, he talked with a woman who had been close to the former German court, and she told him an anecdote which corroborated his story.

Tells of Farm Hoodoo.
This was Mr. Hatch's story: In 1903 a New York newspaper published an account of the lamentable state of affairs on the Hatch farm near Brewster, N. Y. Eighty-five per cent of all the animals born there were males, said the paper. Bulls that might have sold for thousands of dollars went to the butcher for what they would bring because the market was flooded. A flock of 30 ewes bore 26 males. All the chickens were roosters. Even the turkeys and carrier pigeons suffered from the hoodoo. The house cat had seven kittens, and six were tom cats.

A hired man and his wife on the farm had five sons. Even the corn would grow only on stubs and scientists said it was male corn. Soon after the story was published, Mr. Hatch said, a stranger questioned him about it at his store. He wanted an explanation. Mr. Hatch said he thought it might be water, which analysis had shown, contained much phosphorus and magnesium. The stranger then introduced himself as the Russian consul. He wanted a sample of the water. Mr. Hatch agreed.

A few days later the stranger appeared at the farm with two uniformed attendants. With considerable ceremony they filled a keg with the water. The consul insisted on sealing the bung himself, with elaborate rites. Mr. Hatch asked for what purpose the water was wanted. The only answer he could get was: "Just an experiment."

Russian Male Heir Born.

A year later cable dispatches reported that a male heir had been born to the imperial Russian throne. The preceding children of the czar had been daughters.

Mr. Hatch called on the Russian consul. His questions were evaded, and when he became insistent the consul pointedly changed the subject. The merchant's father advised him to keep the episode to himself, and he did so until he heard the recent anecdote attributed to the German court doctor of that day, which seemed to corroborate the implications of his own experience.

Says Bobbed Heads

Cause Loss of Hair
New York.—Women who bobbed their hair seven years ago have 50 per cent less hair now than they had then, Frank Parker, hair expert, told several hundred members of the American Master Hair Dressers' association. The association opened its two-day annual convention at which was sounded the keynote, "Death to the bob!"

Tight hats worn by women with short hair, duplicating the condition to which common baldness of men is attributed, may be the cause of the loss of hair by women, Mr. Parker said. Charles Nessler, president of the association, made the same statement.

"Nature must compensate for this discouragement to hair growing on the head, and it has been predicted that a race of short-haired women will be a race of bearded women," said Mr. Parker. "I think the bob is doomed, however. In 1878 women did the same thing. They cut off their hair and murdered the hair dressing business. In 1893 they did the same. Both times they got over it. They will now."

Walks 43,800 Miles to Toll Clock Each Hour

Luray, Va.—Walking 43,800 miles—all in the night time—is the record established by H. Monroe Duncan of Luray, for the past 30 years night watchman at the Deford Tanning company of this place. During that time Mr. Duncan has tolled the Deford company's night clock every hour from 6 o'clock in the evening until 6 o'clock the following morning—a total of more than 131,400 times. He has been dubbed "Luray's walking night barometer," often deciding disputes as to the character of the weather at certain hours of the night. J. W. Smith, an engineer at the same place for the past 35 years, has walked approximately 25,540 miles in the discharge of his duties between midnight and noon. Mr. Smith, it is estimated, has blown the concern's whistle a total of 306,000 times, not counting the times he has sounded alarm at outbreaks of fire in Luray.

It is no exaggeration to say that Robert B. Mantell, dean of Shakespearean and classic actors on this continent, will hold a Shakespearean festival at the Hartman theater, Columbus, next week, which will also be his farewell engagement in Columbus, as he is making his final theatrical tour this season. "King Lear," "Macbeth" and "Hamlet," three widely different and great tragedies, and "As You Like It" and "The Merchant of Venice," two charming comedies, will be presented. And, to add a very special note of novelty "Hamlet" will be given in two different ways on Tuesday evening, April 13, in traditional manner—that is, with costumes and scenic effects always identified with the play and on Friday night, April 16, in modern manner—that is, with the dress and scenic background of 1926.

Mr. Mantell, by the way, was the first to give this tragedy in modern dress on this side of the Atlantic. At first he refused, but finally yielded to the public desire to see the play, that way, and gave it first in St. Louis, where it was received with such enthusiasm that he has since repeated it many times, and always to very large audiences. In the Pacific Coast cities of the United States also in Canada, it was warmly welcomed. How will Columbus like it?

"Merchant of Venice," one of the finest of all Shakespearean tragedies, will be the bill for the opening performance on Monday evening, also for Saturday matinee. "As You Like It" should prove a charming afternoon's entertainment for the ladies on Wednesday, with beautiful Genevieve Hamper as "Rosalind." "Richelieu" is a fascinating character, with his wonderful knowledge of men, his love of power and his remarkable assumption of kingly right. Saturday afternoon "The Merchant of Venice" with the combination of comedy and tragedy, as exemplified by "Portia" and "Shylock" will be played, as it is always a favorite with the students, young and old. "Macbeth," that Scotch historical tragedy, will bring the engagement to a close—and a fitting one, since Robert Bruce Mantell was born in Scotland.

Genevieve Hamper, who is co-star with Mr. Mantell, will also have an opportunity to play many different parts during the week. She is a favorite with theatergoers by reason of her beauty and talents. The entire supporting company is composed of players who have made a special study of Shakespearean drama and the classics. Each play will have its own proper and adequate setting and costuming.

YOUTH IS BADLY WOUNDED BY PROHIBITION AGENT

Toledo, April 9.—Abe Lubitsky, 19, was shot and probably fatally wounded today by Albert Collins, Negro, federal prohibition agent of Cleveland, who has been working here for some time.

Lubitsky has a bullet wound in his back.

According to Collins, the shooting was the aftermath of a "deal" he made with Lubitsky to purchase a case of whisky for $70.

While Collins was calling headquarters, Lubitsky is alleged to have picked up a chair and hit the agent on the head, and then fled down the street. Reaching the sidewalk, Collins fired twice.

A COLUMN OF LIES

One of our great inspirational writers says that it is a good thing in the night watches to recall all the foolish things you have said in the course of the day, and resolve to be wiser on the morrow, but a paragrapher wouldn't get any sleep at all that way, and we should think a great inspirational writer himself would soon be looking rather worn, wan and haggard.

Saw Filers' Expression

"Gumming a saw" means to establish properly the depth of the interval between the sawteeth. This is not a serious problem on hand saws, as the three-cornered file does this, as it does its other work. On circular saws and drag saws, however, if a file is used for gumming, it must be a round file or a flat file with a round edge.

Two-Piece Dress With Chic Green Felt Hat

This two-piece dress is of flat crepe with a blouse of jade green, embroidered and stitched in silver and black. The skirt is of black, with plaits on the side, and a wide hem of green to match the blouse.

Modes Are More Mature; Away From Flapper Type

Was it only a season or so ago that in any department store one heard the plaint, "Do they make all the styles for young girls?" For a time it did seem as though dress designers and manufacturers had forgotten that girls grow up; and the only resort for the woman of thirty-odd was the private dressmaker or a collection of clothes frankly intended for "stunts."

Every late trend of fashion, however, appears to be away from the purely flapper type of clothes and toward a sophisticated type of dress. Unelaborated, conservative lines, lines that are much easier to wear and really more youthful looking than the narrow little tube dress, appear in the new spring styles. The flare as it is used in the very newest dresses, is modified to make it elastic to suit many types of figures. Plaits are becoming to almost everyone, and plaits are important for spring. A cape will do more to restore youth than all the face-lifting in the world! Capes are used by all the important designers. Yes, this spring the shopper who buys all her clothes in the "Woman's Department," can go blithely on her way, sure in the knowledge that in the women's department of her favorite store she will find every new style and that it will look as though it were made for her!

Many Attractive Things in New Spring Neckwear

Innumerable dainty styles in neckwear are just out. The white things that freshen any suit or frock are particularly attractive, although the organdies and linens in light colors are much liked. The high neck line has created demand for the guimpe, with a collar that closes under the chin or at the back, with a jabot to finish the front. Chemisettes and collars of different styles are made in sheer white, finely tucked, embroidered or lace-trimmed; stiff collars and cuffs of white and colored linens and organdie, untrimmed or simply tucked, are much worn. These are most attractive with the plain frocks and coats in woolen materials. Ascot ties and plain stocks of white goods are worn with the tailored suits.

Print Fabrics Carry Over Into New Season

It is not often that a mode of one year carries over to another. But from every indication the vogue of printed fabrics, which attained such proportions last spring and summer, promises to be even greater this year. There is a difference, however, which applies not alone to the designs, but to the colorings.

In place of the rather grotesque and frequently ugly patterns of last summer are designs of great subtlety. Many hint at modernistic influences, others are adaptations from flowers and leaves, while from the point of view of originality few are of greater importance than designs which reproduce in soft colorings the patterns of stained-glass windows.

Brimless Felt Hat

There is a distinct trend toward the brimless hat, or one the brim of which is reduced to miniature proportions. These brimless hats are frequently made of two or more shades of felt. The tam-o'-shanters are usually of velvet and mounted on a band of brilliantly colored material of a contrasting shade or a matching band of felt.

PASSES INTO THE UNKNOWN NO BELIEF IN HEREAFTER

The Plant Wizard, Luther Burbank, Turned His Attention To Plant Life After a Disappointment In Love and Gave This As a Real Reason For His Success, It Has Been Revealed—Deceased Was the Thirteenth Child of a Family of Fifteen.

Luther Burbank, withered by age, died Sunday at Santa Rosa, California, amid the flowering fruits and blooms that he created for mankind's benefit.

The noted horticulturist passed on to the great adventure of a hereafter in which he had no faith.

Only a few weeks before the end of the great plant wizard had declared that he could not believe in a life after death.

And as life ebbed away and he stood at the brink he did not falter in his convictions.

Infirm and worn after years devoted to developing and guiding plant life the controversy started by his pronouncements on religion and reincarnation contributed to his illness.

A storm of protest came from religious leaders after Mr. Burbank gave out his statement declaring himself to be an infidel. His home was swamped with letters and telegrams condemning his stand. The stress he was subjected to in defending and explaining his beliefs brought on a nervous condition that his 77 years could not survive.

A few minutes before life fled the aged patient lapsed into semi-consciousness.

"Oh, doctor, I am very sick," were his last words. They were uttered to his physician, Dr. Joseph H. Shaw.

Gastro-intestinal complications and violent hiccupping had weakened Mr. Burbank.

All hope for him was given up after a two weeks' struggle by physicians to prolong his life.

At the bedside were his wife and sister, Mrs. Emma Beeson, of Healdsburg.

Edgar A. Waite of the San Francisco Bulletin, revealed that he had obtained an interview with Mr. Burbank to be used only after his death. In which the scientist said the real reason for his success as a plant culturist was a disappointment in love many years ago. This, he told Mr. Waite, turned his energies and his genius into what became his life's work that made him famous.

It was announced Sunday night that public memorial services will be held at 4 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon at Doyle park, amid the flowers and trees where Mr. Burbank had spent so many pleasant hours with friends.

Judge Ben B. Lindsey, of the Denver juvenile court, for long years a close friend, will deliver the eulogy. This is in keeping with a promise made some time ago by the judge. Rev. Caleb S. Dutton, pastor of the First Unitarian church of San Francisco, who officiated at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Burbank 10 years ago also will speak.

Mr. Burbank came of a family of Unitarians, and both he and his wife were members of that denomination at the time of his death.

It is tentatively agreed that the final resting place of the plant scientist will be in his garden among the flowers to whom he had given most of the years of his life.

Early in life Burbank evinced a great love for growing things, selecting plants rather than animals as his pets. His first notable success was achieved at the age of 22, when he happened to find a seed ball of Early Rose potato, which rarely bears seed. From this he developed the world famous Burbank potato that has spread to every portion of the globe and which is said to exert a greater influence upon the food supply of humanity than any other single food plant.

Soon after breeding this potato, which brought him neither fame nor money at the time, Burbank moved to California, where he obtained employment as a farm hand. He continued as a laborer until able to acquire a small farm in the town of Santa Rosa. With this small beginning he undertook the series of experiments which long had been uppermost in his mind. Thereafter his work was continuous and tireless occupying nearly 14 hours a day on the average.

Burbank was born at Lancaster, Massachusetts, March 7, 1849. He was the thirteenth of 15 children born on his father's 200 acre farm.

E. R. DEFFENBAUGH FILES SUIT

The Roseville Brick plant purchased by the state and to be operated by convicts, became involved in litigation again Friday. Emmett R. Deffenbaugh, Lancaster, a stockholder of the Tri-County Paving Brick Co., which was merged with the Roseville plant and the consolidated company sold, filed suit asking that the deed to the state be set aside.

A similar action brought by William C. Nothstine of Pickaway county was settled recently.

Deffenbaugh claimed the transfer of the Tri-County company to the Roseville company was illegal.—Lancaster Eagle.

WHEAT THEFT TWO YOUNG MEN PLEAD GUILTY

Court Sentences on Robert Speakman and Donald Carmean Deferred.

Robert Speakman, 22, and Donald Carmean, 18, jointly indicted with Holly Ankrom, an older man, with breaking into the Brundige grain elevator at Kinnickinnick, and stealing some 25 bushels of wheat, valued at about $42, both plead guilty, this morning when arraigned before Judge Blosser. Their sentences were deferred until after the trial of Ankrom, next week, on the plea of not guilty that Ankrom entered Friday.

Both Speakman and Carmean told the same story of having been the "tool" of Ankrom in this theft. They said Ankrom had found them in a pool room and suggested that they steal the wheat and take it in his truck to Circleville and sell it to Crites; that they did break into the elevator, as suggested by Ankrom, loaded it into Ankrom's truck, kept the truck all night in Ankrom's garage and that Speakman then drove the truck to Circleville, where it broke down before it was delivered, the wheat was unloaded that suspicion that all was not right, was then excited, and that notification of the officers and the arrests followed.

Appeals for leniency towards the neys, John P. Phillips Jr., for Speakman, John P. Phillips Jr., for speakman, and Charles E. Capple for Carmean, mainly on the ground that they were "used" by Ankrom, an older man. A special appeal was made for Carmean on account of his general good character and the standing of his family and that his father needs him on the farm. "I therefore ask for another chance for Donald, said Attorney Capple.—Scioto Gazette.

THE JAZZ KING TED LEWIS TO BE ON SCREEN

Will Launch Into Glittering
Galaxy of Stars Who
Parade Before Kings.

Ted Lewis, better known in Pickaway and Ross counties by the family name of Friedman, is about to launch himself into the glittering galaxy of stars that parade before the "Kliegs."

In other words Ted Lewis is now in Hollywood making screen tests in preparation for his appearance in the title role of "The Jazz King." A scenario based on a story written about Lewis by Edgar Allan Woolf, author of numerous vaudeville sketches and musical comedy books.

Lewis is at present engaged on a little tour of the Orpheum circuit of 20 weeks in preparation to a summer London engagement. The screen debut of "The Jazz King" is scheduled for this fall following the London appearance.

The story for the screen play is taken for a great part, from the boyhood days of Lewis. Incidents such as the time that he was thrown out of the boys' band at Circleville for unorthodox musical methods and his first appearances as a musician for dances in Chillicothe and Circleville will be included in the story of the picture.—News-Advertiser.

EXPERT TELLS HOW TO LIFT A TRUNK

Heavy Weights Can Be Carried Easily By Using the Thigh Muscle.

An undersized, puny expressman comes trotting along with a trunk three times his own weight on his back. You are amazed at the great strength of such a slight fellow. Yet it is not a question of strength entirely. He has learned by long experience how to lift and carry weights.

For many years, Dr. J. F. Williams, professor of physical training at Columbia University, New York, has studied this interesting subject, and in the April issue of Popular Science Monthly he gives some of the secrets of lifting heavy objects.

"The strongest muscles in the body," he explains, "are the heavy thigh muscles. These should be used in lifting whenever possible. The shoulders, too, can be used. Don't stoop and expect your arm muscles, supported by the back, to lift a heavy weight. The weight at the end of the arms is at the end of a long lever with fulcrum at the pelvis, and the mechanical disadvantage is terrific.

"To pick up a weight, squat with back straight. Grasp the object, then straighten up, and the whole work of lifting will be done by the legs.

"Always keep a weight as close to the body as possible. When you can, get the weight on top of your own. Another good idea is to follow the Oriental's plan of balancing weights. If you are planning a long trip, for example, buy two suitcases instead of one and distribute your load.

"The professional trunk mover never strains his back, because he doesn't use his back. He rests the weight on his thigh muscles, the strongest in the body. If you have a trunk to move, roll it around on its corners. If this might cause damage to the floors, then life it by the use of your legs. Remember that a slight mistake in lifting may cause injury to your whole body."

WEALTHY OHIO CITIZEN IS INSTANTLY KILLED

Chicago, April 9.—(U.P.)—While flames across the widow ledge seared his fingers, Louis J. Ainsworth, wealthy head of a Cincinnati, Ohio, radio manufacturing company early today hung for five minutes from the 19th story window of the Morris hotel, and then dropped to the ground—dying instantly.

Ainsworth's drop was the culmination of five minutes of feverish attempted rescue work during which two men risked their lives and dozens of others attempted to rescue the man.

RADIO MESSAGES TO OTHER WORLDS?

Recent discoveries, made known by the president of England's Royal Astronomical society, indicate that the little dark star on which we live is situated not far from the center of the greater universe, something man in his conceited ignorance has always believed. . . . For every sun, or twinkling star in space, there are many more dark stars or planets, which shine, if at all, by reflected light. This destroys one of primitive man's illusions that the sky and sun and stars were all created for the benefit of himself and his fellows alone. In these millions of unseen worlds there must be others similarly situated as our earth, on which the same forms of life have appeared and exist. One of these days radio may be perfected to the point where the people on one planet may exchange messages with those on another. It is a far-distant probability but not an impossibility.—Capper's Weekly.

She Keeps It There

"Time waits for no man"—but hangs around the corner a bit for the average woman.

He Was a Nugget-Seeker

By MARTHA M. WILLIAMS

"GO! GO! GO!—Hailfax! Anywhere out of my sight!" Myrtle stormed.

Drury, her young sister, laughed teasingly as she flung back: "Thanky! But Minge Junction is plenty had enough. Whatever made you camp in it, Sis Flower?"

"Shut up! Let me think!" Myrtle hissed through set teeth.

Drury had the money—rather her guardian did. The pair were half-sisters. Myrtle, exquisitely dark, slender and graceful as her name flower, with the accentings of velvet-dark eyes and red-coral lips, fiery, selfish, dominant, was ill-cast in the role of dependent. Drury was fat, but not placid. A shrewd bargainer, she was relentless in keeping bargains once made. Her mother, grandchild of plain hill folk, had mysteriously inherited a half million. It had bought her a husband, in the person of a renowned yet fascinating spendthrift.

When she was killed in a runaway accident two years later cynics said one to another: "The luck of Drury Greer!" He had been left very handsomely provided for—with only that lump of a baby, named for him, as the fly in the ointment.

Drury inherited all her mother's longing for power and high place. At ten, when her father died, leaving Myrtle scant tangible assets, she had driven her first bargain. Myrtle was to stay on, keeping the home up to Greer level, until Drury, properly trained and polished, had been launched socially and put in the way of making a brilliant marriage—this in return for a life of easy luxury.

Child that she was, Drury had realized this was her only chance. She had no background—all her mother's people were dead. Luckily—in a way. The money bought her only a sort of shamed tolerance from the Greers. All that is, but Myrtle—who albeit she stormed and raved sometimes, stood loyally to her promise despite the protests of Greers, and Lacy's, her mother's kindred. Her heart had for two years belonged absolutely to one Elliot Lane, a masterful person, restive at waiting longer for his love.

It was this that had moved Myrtle to the desperate venture of Minge Junction—a place she had been told where money counted for everything. At home folk were barely civil to Drury now just turned seventeen. Despite the long bickerings, the stormy outbreaks, Myrtle had somewhat of sisterly love for the lone creature. Until she saw her in the way of being safely married she could not feel that she had a right to her own happiness.

They had come a day back to the gorgeous hotel. But as yet they themselves had not been seen. Raymond Carr, Esq., stood as a lion in the path. He was a sort of human Blue Book, knowing all about everything, everybody, all the nice points of usage. Why, Oh! Why had Fate sent him here? Myrtle had met him casually in her first winter out. He had declined to keep up the acquaintance, telling her hostess: "She is too beautiful—unless she had the million." Poor, fat, free-spoken Drury would be fair game for him.

Drury had vanished. Myrtle sat pondering a quick vanishing by the night train. She started to ring up the office and say so, but sat down almost fainting at what she saw through the open balcony window. Drury, bare-headed, standing mighty straight, facing Raymond Carr. He was smiling down at her—as he rarely had smiled at anything feminine. She had given him the thrill of his life—in blue linen, her broad cheeks richly pink, her clear blue eyes dancing, sandy tendrils clinging to her white forehead, she was an adorable milkmaid. To his dismay he had heard himself asking her: "Would you like a spin to the lake this morning?" And had been answered brightly: "Too late, Mister Man. Sis Flower wrote for a car as well as rooms. I'm sorry—real sorry she did."

She left him no time for debate, running on: "If the hotel car turns out to be just ordinary, won't you please see that we have a better one, please see that we have a better one."

"I shall see to it that you get it," Carr returned smiling broadly. "Even though I'm only a guest—like yourself."

"Oh! Mercy me! And I took you for a livery man," Drury interrupted, her cheeks true scarlet.

"Let's not spoil things by apologies," he said, touching her arm lightly. "No—don't tell me your name—I want to find it out for myself."

"I'd rather tell you—maybe you won't want to ask—when you hear it," Drury said humbly. "I'm Drury Greer. You—you must know all about me."

She was infinitely appealing—even to a human Blue Book. Raymond Carr took her hand, saying with a dazed smile: "Suppose we go find Sis Flower and ask her to chaperone us for a ride."

"You—you aren't fooling!" she asked breathlessly. He looked her full in the face, questioning: "Why should I be?"

"Oh! Because—because nobody ever before seemed to like me," Drury said huskily. "A girl at school said I'd never get a husband, unless he was hunting for gold nuggets."

"I am just that sort," Carr answered, trying to speak lightly. "But please remember—there is more than one sort of gold."

Working Model of Solar System Built by Alien

Chicago.—A mechanical model of the solar system which, according to Professor F. R. Moulton, head of the department of astronomy at the University of Chicago, shows more of the facts of the motion of the earth and moon than any similar machine, is the result of seven years' spare time labor by Diego Arzic, a Jugo-Slav immigrant.

Arzic was educated as a mechanical engineer at the Technical School of Marine Engineering at Pola, Jugo-Slavia, and came to Chicago in 1912. Chancing to read a book on astronomy, he became intrigued by the mechanics of the universe and determined to construct an accurate model in miniature.

He spent three years of minute calculations before he began constructing his model. The work itself required four years' labor in the little shop at the rear of his home here, with the simplest of tools. He frequently worked all night, refusing to stop even for meals.

An electric-lighted ball represents the sun in Arzic's machine. The machine is motivated by a clock, registering central time, the day, month and year, and operating 110 gears that control movements ranging in time from one minute to 12,500 years. Thus, the position of the models at a given second corresponds to that of the planets, and the movements of the moon around the earth and the earth around the sun are portrayed with correct periods and eccentricities. The entire mechanism is mounted on an elliptical frame nine feet in diameter.

"In my opinion the machine is a very remarkable mechanism," said Professor Moulton. "It makes particularly clear those features which are found difficult to teach."

LOANS UP TO $500.00.

Incentive is the power behind action. It is the impulse that causes the brain to command the muscles. The proper incentive is all any man needs to do his best or his worst. Remove the incentive, and the power stops. Where there is incentive, there is also gain. It may be in the form of health, wealth or satisfaction; but in the normal, healthful, happy person the incentive is usually wealth.

It is this incentive that guides so many people to use the popular loan service provided by the City Loan. And it matters not whether person the incentive is usually buy something new or protect what they already have—they gain by using the service.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

BOY SCOUT TROOPS
IN LEGION POSTS
Plans calling for the sponsoring of
a boy scout troop by each of the 10,000
American Legion posts of the nation.
training of Legion scout masters to
conduct the troops and the formation
of a national Legion boy scout organization to expand further the Legion's
co-operation with the Boy Scouts of America, were launched recently.
A national committee to carry out
the plans is being formed with H. D.
McBride of St. Louis, scout commissioner, as chairman.
The Legion's scout organization will consist of post, state, regional and national committees. Every Legion post
will be encouraged to organize a boy scout troop. The committees will place
definite emphasis on the camping out
and outdoor activities of scouting.
Where practicable, Legionnaires will attend scout training courses before
assuming positions of active scout
leadership.
Posts of the Legion will promote,
provide or conduct permanent and
temporary boy scout camps in every community, according to established
standards. They will assist in organizing and conducting week-end hikes,
rallies, athletic exhibitions and field
events.
The Legion during the past three
years has formed or sponsored 1,000
scout troops in the country.
"A special effort will be made to
reach under-privileged boys, or those
who ordinarily have no opportunity to
join troops affiliated with churches,
schools, etc.," declared Mr. McBride.

Millions of Dollars
for Disabled Veterans
Fifty-five thousand World war veterans and their dependents had received additional benefits approximat-
ing twenty-nine millions of dollars
under the provisions of the Reed-
Johnson bill, sponsored by the American Legion, and its amendments up
to the beginning of the year 1926, according to advices from Legion service officials in Washington.
Approximately 30,000 of the 55,000
persons benefiting under the law had
never before received compensation
from the government in any form,
and the others profited on account of
increased payments.
Hundreds of thousands of cases
that were lying untouched in the Veterans' bureau owing to the inadequacy
of the law previous to the passage of
the Reed-Johnson bill on June 7, 1924,
are now being reviewed.
Veterans or their dependents have
already benefited as follows: 12,000
tubercular veterans were awarded $13,000,000 in compensation; mentally
incompetent veterans were compensated at a cost of $7,500,000; dependents of disabled veterans numbering
4,336 received $300,497 additional allowances and 12,344 dependents of
dead veterans received increased allowances amounting to $1,154,280 for
the care of 994 veterans and nearly
a million dollars in compensation was awarded to 800 veterans suffering
from so-called "wilful misconduct"
diseases.

Award Legion Medals
to School Graduates
Grammar school boys of the nation who best exemplify the qualities
of courage, scholarship, leadership,
service and honor will be awarded
American Legion medals upon graduation.
The national executive committee
of the Legion has authorized posts
throughout the nation to award the
medals in connection with the Legion's national program of cultivating good citizenship.
The American Legion Auxiliary has authorized a medal to be presented
to girls under conditions similar to
those which govern the Legion award
to boys. Posts may secure the Legion school medals through the Emblem division, national headquarters,
Indianapolis, Ind.

Reasonable Explanation
A negro laborer had just fallen from
the heights of a tall building being constructed. Head first and like a projectile he crashed downward and
disappeared through an opening in the
sidewalk connecting with the basement. The foreman rushed down, expecting to find a mangled corpse, but
instead discovered Jazzbo reposing in
a mass of waste paper.
"Man!" gasped the foreman, "how
did you manage to escape being
killed?"
"Boss, Ah dunno," groaned Jazzbo,
rubbing his head. "Ceptin' dat cement
sidewalk must of broke mah fall."

Built an Airport
When it was pointed out that Boise,
Idaho, needed an airport and the
grounds for the port had been donated
but no funds were available to build
it, the local post of the American Legion said: "We'll build it." They did build it and now Boise's airport is receiving the fleets of the air.

Elderly Picture Actress

Hollywood's most ambitious "extra" is ninety. She is Mary Holden, born in Rutland, Vt. Every day she appears at casting offices looking for "odd bits" in motion picture and more often than not she obtains employment. "I never thought about acting until I was eighty," she declared. "Now I think it is wonderful. I want to play in 100 pictures before I die. I will never be too old to get parts. In my case, the older I am, the better."

Take "Picture Brides"

To console the solitary young Japanese bachelors settled in South America, the consul of that country at Sao Paulo, Brazil, has undertaken to encourage the immigration of picture brides. According to Miyako, 3,000 of these brides have registered for passage to Brazil, 3,000 for Argentina, 2,000 for Mexico, and a smaller number for other destinations on this side of the Atlantic.—Living Age.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

General Happenings Taken From the Records of the Various County Offices.

Court of Appeals.

The court of appeals convenes Wednesday, April 14, with Judge Roscoe Mauck, of Gallipolis; Edward D. Sayre, of Athens and W. H. Middleton, of Waverly, on the bench.

The following cases are on the docket:

William H. Orebaugh against Charles K. Rager, on error. Snyder & Miller represent the plaintiff and Adkins & Webber the defendant.

Charles Mounjoy against John Weaver, on error. Charles Dresbach represents the plaintiff and Charles Gerhardt and Barton Walters the defendant.

Katharine Green, by Matthias A. Bigger, her next friend, against George W. Morrison, trustee of the estate of Sidner Ward, and John G. Green, on error. Charles Gerhardt represents John G. Green and M. L. Bigger the defendant.

The State of Ohio against Maxwell Snyder, on error. Meeker Terwilliger represents the State and I. F. Snyder and C. C. Clouse are defendants attorneys.

Ida Flint against the Scioto Valley Traction & Power company on error. Abernethy & Simkins represent the plaintiff. Charles Gerhardt and Oscar W. Newman, of Columbus, represent the defendant.

Declared Dead.

David Marion, the aged father of Amos F. Marion, has filed a petition in probate court, declaring to the best of his knowledge and belief, that his son, who disappeared June 17, 1917, is dead.

The young man left in 1912, but his father learned of his whereabouts through letters he received for him several years afterwards, but has heard nothing from him since 1917. The last letter told of his joining the navy and of serving his time and receiving his discharge. It is thought that he may have joined the army, and is now sleeping among the silent dead as an unknown, nameless soldier.

The father, bent with years, was in the city Saturday. He is patriarchal looking, and if he stood erect, would be six feet and one inch tall. He lives just west of the Mackay Ford bridge in Scioto township on a piece of land cleared for Gilbert Humble. He loves the woods and has always worked in the open. He loves the outdoors especially the big trees, which he calls his friends.

Mr. Marion has been carrying an insurance policy on his son's life for a number of years and the declaration had to made to legally obtain the money on the policy.

Suit For Money.

Jacob Young and Flora Murray, executors of the estate of Henry Phillips, deceased, have filed a civil action against George W. Coakley and Nellie F. Coakley for money and foreclosure, amount claimed $100 and interest at six per cent from June 24, 1924. George G. Adkins, Barton Walters and C. A. Weldon represent the plaintiff.

Divorce Granted.

A divorce was granted in probate court by Judge Adkins to John Hatfield from Florence Hatfield on the grounds of gross neglect of duty and adultery. The defendant was given the custody of their only child, a girl. I. F. Snyder represented the plaintiff.

Suit For Divorce.

Edna B. Sheppard, an infant, by her next friend, Stephen Bennett, has filed a suit in probate court for divorce from Leroy Sheppard. The couple were married September 15, 1924, in this city. She charges her husband with gross neglect and with consorting with other women. At the January term of court he was convicted of grand larceny and was sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory. She asks to be restored to her maiden name, Edna Bennett. C. A. Weldon represents the plaintiff.

Breeders Try to Improve Flocks

More Interest Developed in Production of High Egg-Laying Strains.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

For many years the efforts of poultry breeders to improve their flocks were confined largely to breeding for the type and color demanded by the "Standard of Perfection," and little attention was paid to developing high egg production. In the last few years, however, more interest has developed in the production of high egg-laying strains.

Production and Quality.

To show that high egg production and good standard quality can be combined to a high degree in chickens, and to encourage breeding along these lines, was the purpose of the exhibit displayed by the United States Department of Agriculture at the Madison Square garden poultry show held in New York city a few weeks ago.

The male birds of the department's exhibit were all of excellent standard quality and were bred from hens which had laid from 200 to 290 eggs in their pullet year. Most of them had a pedigree which included several generations of producers of 200 eggs or more. The exhibit included male birds of the Barred Plymouth Rock breed, the Rhode Island Red breed, and the White Leghorn breed, demonstrating that high egg production is not confined to the White Leghorns.

Breeding for Eggs.

Breeding fowls for high-egg production was given a great stimulus by the inauguration of egg-laying contests in this country about 15 years ago. These contests are now being held in every section of the country. A number of hens entered in these official contests have laid more than 300 eggs in one year. The highest producing hens are now coming from flocks which have been pedigree bred for egg production for a period of years. A large per cent of the hens entered in these contests are White Leghorns, but just as large egg records have been made by other popular breeds, such as Plymouth Rock, Rhode Island Red, and Wyandotte.

Gypsum Considered as a Direct Soil Fertilizer

Gypsum, according to Iowa tests, does not have the ability to neutralize acid soils even though it does contain calcium the same as limestone. It has no alkalinity, and, therefore, cannot take the place of limestone. On the other hand, gypsum does not have any injurious effect on the soil, as is sometimes believed, the Iowa station says. Gypsum should be considered as a direct fertilizer, as it supplies calcium and sulphur to plants. It also has some value in certain soils as an indirect fertilizer, for laboratory experiments have shown that it has the property of making native potassium available to plants, and hence, might, in some cases, take the place of expensive potassium fertilizers. The bulletin covering this work may be had by writing for No. 232, bulletin section, Iowa State college, Ames, Iowa.

Sowing Scarified Sweet

Clover Seed in Pasture

Sweet clover may be sown in an old pasture by sowing scarified seed during the early spring, and covering the seed with a disk or harrow, or by allowing the stock to trample the seed in. It can also be seeded by sowing the unscarified seed during the late fall months, or even during the winter when the ground is not covered with snow. It should be kept in mind that sweet clover is quite sensitive to acid soils, and that when seeding in an old pasture the young sweet clover plants must compete with the sod that has already become established. Better stands are usually secured when the ground is plowed and the sweet clover seeded with a small grain crop.

Farm Hints

A load of lime makes good ballast on the trip home from town.

The biggest profits in farming go to the man who watches the so-called little things.

When planting seed potatoes be sure that it is good seed, free from diseases that will ruin crop and profit.

The bee keeper who made the right provisions for his apiary last fall needs to give slight thought to them this spring.

The European corn borer spends about 11 months out of the year as a caterpillar in the green and dried stocks of corn.

Heffers that are due to freshen in the spring should be worked with a little, so that they will be used to having their udders handled.

Farm wages will probably be just as high this year as they have been the past two seasons, and especially will this be true of the eight-month man.

General expansion in agricultural production this year might place farmers in a less favorable economic position than at present, believe many agricultural economists.

Cheese as Aid to Beauty

Cheese, asserts Professor Sammis, is one of the most perfectly balanced foods, and it is an aid to beauty. The worst enemy to a sallow complexion is a bite of cheese taken regularly before going to bed. He refers to the fact that the girls living in the cheese-producing sections of Europe are noted for their beauty and clear complexion. They are perpetually beautiful because they use whey from new cheese as a lotion.—Pathfinder.

AMUSEMENTS

"Womanhandled," the answer to "Manhandled" by the same author, is the feature at the Met theater. Richard Dix is starred with Esther Ralston Margaret Morris, Edmund Breese and Ivan Simpson in the supporting cast. Directed by Gregory LaCava as his first picture for Paramount, "Womanhandled" tells a story of modern western ranch life—a farce comedy in which the star, as Bill Dana, an eastern "softly," hires himself to the wild and woolly west to make a real man of himself. There is, of course, a pretty girl behind it all—Miss Ralston who greatly admires men of "the great open spaces." The picture is taken up with how the star goes about winning the girl's heart when he arrives on his uncle's ranch in Arizona and finds that the west of yesterday and the west of today are entirely different.

How he goes about rearranging things, digging up "atmosphere" so as to make the ranch look like "the real thing" when the girl arrives to see her new made hero is a big laugh. And it's riot when the girl sees thru the scheme and prances off in a huff to "home and mother."

Rapid-fire comedy, warm romance and plenty of rousing action pack every foot of "Womanhandled." The title alone ought to be enough to get you in and, believe us, the picture will surely make you mighty glad you went.

"Womanhandled" is the type of clean, keen, wholesome material the whole family will enjoy.

Luther Reed wrote the screen play from Arthur Stringer's Saturday Evening Post story.

LIGHTHOUSE BLUES BANISHED BY RADIO

Music From Air Now Comes to Lonely Isles.

Boston.—Adoption of the radio by keepers of lighthouses and lightships has given brilliant touch to a new chapter in the romance of the Atlantic ocean.

Since the days when first wooden fires were kindled in the tower of Pharos light to warn and guide mariners entering the ancient harbor of Alexandria, the life of the lighthouse keeper has been one of dreary monotony and isolation.

For ages the keepers have tended their wooden fires, huge wax candles, oil, gas or electric lanterns, never allowing them to burn low or cease their flashing.

Pilots seeing the beacon altered their courses to steer clear of rocky ledge or treacherous hidden shoal. The keeper of the light watched their approach and followed their departure until the ship dropped below the horizon or its lights were extinguished in the dark of night, leaving only intensified solitude in its wake.

Even today visitors are almost unknown at many lights that dot New England's broken coast. Only an occasional visit by a tender ship that brings supplies breaks the monotony that makes all days seem as one. In bad weather the periods of isolation are liable to extend over months. Newspapers and magazines are weeks old and their news, as such, has long since ceased to be.

Their Greatest Boon.

It is not difficult, then, to believe with Capt. George E. Eaton, superintendent of the Second Lighthouse district, that radio has proven the greatest single boon to lighthouse keepers in generations.

The picture he lays before the land-lubber could have its setting in the desolate Great Point light, miles from the mainland, or in the famous Minots ledge light that rises from the water without apparent support. Minot's foundation is cut in the solid rock of one of the most dangerous submerged ledges on the entire coast line.

The last visit of a tender is weeks back. Overhead the signal light flashes and blinks in unceasing rhythm. In the season of gales and out of the bleak north sweep unleashed winds that scourge the Atlantic and froth its surface in foam. Spray turns to ice and coats the glass protection around the flashing light with sleet. The observation loft whistles in the gale.

The keeper's "trick" is up and he is relieved by an assistant.

He now retires to his room. He turns a knob on his radio set. The scene shifts and forms a new picture. The winds subside and waves no longer pound. It is a peaceful night and strains of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" fill the room. Soon the leader of the Philharmonic orchestra in New York or Philadelphia surrenders his baton to a "jazz" outfit in Pittsburgh or Chicago. As for the news of the day, in fact, of the hour, he needs but turn his dial to another station and instantly he is listening to despatches that under ordinary circumstances he would not have known for weeks.

Nearly All Have Radio.

In all there are about 120 lights scattered along the Bay state coast. Of these, 60 are "watched" lights and some 75 keepers are employed to see that their beacons are kept burning. Most of them are illuminated by gas lanterns as lighthouse officials believe it to be even more dependable than electricity for their need.

Almost without exception these stations house one or more radio sets which the keepers themselves have purchased.

On board the lightships the change is even more pronounced and fascinating. There are 17 of these vessels bobbing at anchor at points of greatest hidden danger. Life on board them is more isolated than that of the lighthouse. One hundred and two miles off the coast is stationed the Nan-tucket shoals ship, the furthest-from-land lightship in the world. Fifteen men comprise its crew and it is often months at a time that they never see land.

Street Names, Like

Kins', May Live or Die

Baltimore, Md.—The longevity of the names of city streets is much like the longevity of family names, says a writer.

In some families a name is handed down unchanged from father to son; in others, the name is quickly lost through the marriage of daughters or perhaps dies through lack of living descendants.

So with the names of city streets. Some live sturdily on, others change frequently or are connected, link by link, with other streets, and the name of the most important of them becomes the name of several sections.

Take Broadway as an example of the changing names of thoroughfares. It was originally called "Point road." In course of time the "Point road" was called "Market" street, the thoroughfare was widened and the 29 blocks of stately avenue became known as Broadway.

Baltimore street has experienced three changes of name and has absorbed other titles.

Three jovially named alleys—Cider alley, Whisky alley and Bottle alley—adorn the map of 1801. Whisky alley has lost its identity, doubtless through interference of prohibition influence. Cider and Bottle alleys still gayly hold their own.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS GROW IN INTEREST

Powerful Sermons Delivered by Blind Preacher Sunday Morning and Night.

Two more inspiring sermons were given at the Evangelical church Sunday by Rev. Charles A. Glass.

Sunday morning the subject was "The Power That is Needed in the Church and in the Individual Life." Text: But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto Me both in Jerusalem and in all Judea and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." Acts 1:8.

How I wish in these days when men are seeking power, for some are seeking to become financially powerful some are seeking to become physically powerful, and some are seeking to become politically powerful, but oh, how I wish men and women would become just as anxious, yea more anxious to become spiritually powerful. For it is God's will that each of us should become powerful along the lines mentioned in this text. You notice he said "Shall" receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." There is no other means by which you and I can hope to have this power in our lives only as we open our hearts and receive the Holy Ghost.

Sunday Night.

"Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth."—Colossians 3:2.

There is a God-given tendency in human nature of which the enemy of our souls tries to take advantage. It is that tendency to become fascinated and fall in love with those things around us. I believe this is a God-given tendency.

There are many people who get their attention drawn in the right direction under some circumstance in life, but the apostle wants you to become more than merely interested for a little while. He wants you to SET your affections on thing above.

I have known people to withdraw their affections from things above and put that affection around a desire for earthly possessions. Then, I know of so many, especially among young people, to withhold their affections or withdraw their affections from the things above and put it around a desire for fun. This old world is going mad over the amusement question. They are so anxious for something amusing that they have tried to draw it into the churches, and they have in many places done away with the gospel message; it has been set aside for something amusing.

Why should we set our affections on things above? When we are seeking to do this we are seeking to set the affections on a glorious prospect of one day being delivered from all that seems hard to endure in this life, and not only that, but we are also seeking to set the affections on the glorious hope of being reunited with those who have gone on before us. We are also seeking to set the affections on the glorious assurance of seeing Jesus.

Have you set your affections on the things above? I invite you to do it tonight.

Monday night is "Parents' Night." Everybody is invited and welcome and there will be good things in the message for all, but Rev. Glass wants to bring especially to the fathers and mothers of this community the greatest question that is facing fathers and mothers today.

Russian Tribe Long

Isolated From World

Explorers fighting their way through the uncharted timber lands of northern Siberia came upon a tribe of Russians, who spoke an old archaic Slavonic and who had not heard of the Bolshevik revolution and neither of the last six or seven czars since Peter the Great. They lived completely isolated from the rest of the world. There was no knowledge of any of the great events of history, including Napoleon's march to Moscow, the Japanese war, which was fought almost within hearing of their habitat. In the middle of the jungle, the explorers came upon a completely rigged ship of the Sixteenth century, probably of Dutch origin. There was no navigable river within miles and the suggestion is put forward that the ship was deposited so far inland by a huge tidal wave, as was the case with the ship that lies 16 miles from the coast on Java and which rests against the side of an extinct volcano and was carried inland by gigantic eruptions with accompanying tidal waves. —Pierre Van Paassen, in the Atlanta Constitution.

Movie Models Show Advance Modes in Feminine Fashions

THESE striking fashions displayed in the fashion show of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's forthcoming production, "Monte Carlo," indicate the way the vane of fashion is pointing for the next few seasons in feminine fashions. At the left is an elaborate negligee of silver and black lace with fox bordering the neck and train. Next is an ultra-chic wrap for summer fashioned of fashionable cloth of gold with white fox collar and cuffs and finished with a gold ribbon band around the waistline. The bloused effect on this wrap is the newest edict from Paris.

The beaded evening frock next to

this is interestingly fashioned with the slight blouse effect which is Fashion's newest note this season, with regular scallops on the hem of the skirt. It is developed of green satin and the beads are crystal applied in an all over pattern that is decidedly effective. That colored rudies are particularly interesting is shown in the attractive chemise worn by Janice Peters at the extreme right. This is made of black and white georgette with a large embroidered rose on one side.

These fashions were specially designed and executed for the fashion parade in the spectacular "Monte Carlo" production, by Kathleen Kay, Maude Marsh and Andre Anz.

KENYON COLLEGE

Professor's Death Might Not Have Been Accidental—Another Wife In Case.

Gambier, April 9.—(UP.)—The possibility that Professor Walter Denston, of Kenyon College, who died here last night from a gunshot wound, had another wife in England of which country he was a native, was investigated today by immigration authorities.

Thomas Thomas, director of the Cincinnati immigration bureau, said he had received a letter from Cecilia Denston, "of England," informing him that she was Denston's legal wife and that he had entered the United States with another woman.

Thomas revealed he received the letter last February and later communicated with Denston. The instructor, he said, wrote in reply that he had obtained a divorce from the English woman.

The immigration officer said he again wrote to "Mrs. Denston" in England and received a reply declaring that she had never been informed of the divorce proceedings and doubted that Denston had ever obtained a decree.

Elements of mystery surrounded the instructor's death today. He was found in a woodland Wednesday night, a bullet wound in his head. Earlier in the day he had told his wife he was going out to shoot at a target.

Police were inclined to scoff the theory that Denston shot himself accidentally. Denston was a World War veteran and had high standing in educational circles.

GOVERNOR PINCHOT

Of Pennsylvania Has Shied His Hat In the Ring For U. S. Senator.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 9.—(UP.)—Governor Pinchot today announced that Attorney General Woodruff would confer immediately with District Attorney Fox of Philadelphia, to discuss action on forgeries and perjuries which the governor charged yesterday were committed in filing the nomination petitions of Congressman William S. Vare, of Philadelphia.

Vare, Pinchot and Senator Pepper seek the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator. The governor said the attorney general would try and make arrangements for a meeting with Fox tomorrow.

"I do not believe the public interest would be served by entering into a discussion of anything found in Mr. Pepper's petition," the governor said when asked if he would investigate the Pepper petitions.

"It would be as futile as talking of the last snowstorm, for Mr. Pepper's candidacy has melted away since the gang deserted him.

"I am fighting Vare and Vareism. These nominating petitions show the Vare gang in its true light. Let us keep to the main issue."

Tattooing No Longer Confined to Savages

The art of tattooing had its origin among the untutored and slightly cannibalistic natives of New Zealand and the South Pacific Islands. Conventionalized parrots and parrot-fish, and endless geometrical designs were tapped into the epidermis with crude instruments resembling a hammer and tongs, according to a writer in Vanity Fair.

The soot of the candle nut was mixed with coconut oil, rubbed on the bone needle points, and a hibiscus-wood mallet was then used to force the needles into the lady or gentleman who wished to be tattooed.

Tattooing has passed from the savage to the sailor, from the sailor to the landsman. It has percolated through the entire social stratum. Tattooing has received its credentials, and may now be found beneath many a tailored shirt.

REVEALS SECRET OF ROMANOV MALE HEIR

Merchant Says Russ Consul Sought "Magic" Water.

New York.—A fantastic "imperial secret" that had its inception on a New York farm and its conclusion in the court of the Romanovs has been told after 20 years of silence by Edward Hatch, a New York merchant, former member of the firm of Lord & Taylor.

The story began in 1903. The ill luck of the Romanov dynasty restrained Mr. Hatch from revealing it for many years. Then it grew dim in memory and retrospection made its details even seem more improbable. He continued to keep quiet until a few days ago when, he said, he talked with a woman who had been close to the former German court, and she told him an anecdote which corroborated his story.

Tells of Farm Hoodoo.

This was Mr. Hatch's story:

In 1903 a New York newspaper published an account of the lamentable state of affairs on the Hatch farm near Brewster, N. Y. Eighty-five per cent of all the animals born there were males, said the paper. Bulls that might have sold for thousands of dollars went to the butcher for what they would bring because the market was flooded. A flock of 30 ewes bore 26 males. All the chickens were roosters. Even the turkeys and carrier pigeons suffered from the hoodoo. The house cat had seven kittens, and six were tom cats.

A hired man and his wife on the farm had five sons. Even the corn would grow only on stubs and scientists said it was male corn.

Soon after the story was published, Mr. Hatch said, a stranger questioned him about it at his store. He wanted an explanation. Mr. Hatch said he thought it might be water, which analysis had shown, contained much phosphorus and magnesium.

The stranger then introduced himself as the Russian consul. He wanted a sample of the water. Mr. Hatch agreed.

A few days later the stranger appeared at the farm with two uniformed attendants. With considerable ceremony they filled a keg with the water. The consul insisted on sealing the bung himself, with elaborate rites. Mr. Hatch asked for what purpose the water was wanted. The only answer he could get was:

"Just an experiment."

Russian Male Heir Born.

A year later cable dispatches reported that a male heir had been born to the imperial Russian throne. The preceding children of the czar had been daughters.

Mr. Hatch called on the Russian consul. His questions were evaded, and when he became insistent the consul pointedly changed the subject. The merchant's father advised him to keep the episode to himself, and he did so until he heard the recent anecdote attributed to the German court doctor of that day, which seemed to corroborate the implications of his own experience.

TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH

Companies' Squabble In Michigan Ordered Into Supreme Court.

Detroit, Mich., April 9.—(UP.)—The much discussed contract between the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., and the Michigan Bell Telephone Company has been formally ordered into federal court here for inspection by United States Master in Chancery William S. Sayres Jr.

Action of the master brought to a high point the hearing of the Bell Company's petition for an injunction to restrain the Michigan State Public Utilities Commission enforcing recently ordered rate reductions in the city of Detroit.

It is the first time the contract has been made available in any Michigan court. Inspection was desired particularly to ascertain the cost of services rendered the Bell Company by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

YOUTH IS BADLY WOUNDED BY PROHIBITION AGENT

Toledo, April 9.—Abe Lubitsky, 19, was shot and probably fatally wounded today by Albert Collins, Negro, federal prohibition agent of Cleveland, who has been working here for some time.

Lubitsky has a bullet wound in his back.

According to Collins, the shooting was the aftermath of a "deal" he made with Lubitsky to purchase a case of whisky for $70.

While Collins was calling headquarters, Lubitsky is alleged to have picked up a chair and hit the agent on the head, and then fled down the street. Reaching the sidewalk, Collins fired twice.

A COLUMN OF STINGS

One of our great inspirational writers says that it is a good thing in the night watches to recall all the foolish things you have said in the course of the day, and resolve to be wiser on the morrow, but a paragrapher wouldn't get any sleep at all that way, and we should think a great inspirational writer himself would soon be looking rather worn, wan and baggy.

Saw Filers' Expression

"Gumming a saw" means to establish properly the depth of the interval between the sawteeth. This is not a serious problem on hand saws, as the three-cornered file does this, as it does its other work. On circular saws and drag saws, however, if a file is used for gumming, it must be a round file or a flat file with a round edge.

Two-Piece Dress With Chic Green Felt Hat

This two-piece dress is of flat crepe with a blouse of jade green, embroidered and stitched in olive and black. The skirt is of black, with plaits on the side, and a wide hem of green to match the blouse.

Modes Are More Mature; Away From Flapper Type

Was it only a season or so ago that a city department store one heard the plaint, "Do they make all the styles for young girls?" For a time it did seem as though dress designers and manufacturers had forgotten that girls grow up; and the only resort for the woman of thirty-odd was the private dressmaker or a collection of clothes frankly intended for "stouts."

Every late trend of fashion, however, appears to be away from the purely flapper type of clothes and toward a sophisticated type of dress. Unelaborated, conservative lines, lines that are much easier to wear and really more youthful looking than the narrow little tube dress, appear in the new spring styles. The flare as it is used in the very newest dresses, is modified to make it elastic to suit many types of figures. Plaits are becoming to almost everyone, and plaits are important for spring. A cape will do more to restore youth than all the face-lifting in the world! Capes are used by all the important designers. Yes, this spring the shopper who buys all her clothes in the "Woman's Department," can go blithely on her way, sure in the knowledge that in the women's department of her favorite store she will find every new style and that it will look as though it were made for her!

Many Attractive Things in New Spring Neckwear

Innumerable dainty styles in neckwear are just out. The white things that freshen any suit or frock are particularly attractive, although the organdies and linens in light colors are much liked. The high neck line has created demand for the guimpe, with a collar that closes under the chin or at the back, with a jabot to finish the front. Chemisettes and collars of different styles are made in sheer white, finely tucked, embroidered or lace-trimmed; stiff collars and cuffs of white and colored linens and organdie, untrimmed or simply tucked, are much worn. These are most attractive with the plain frocks and coats in woolen materials. Ascot ties and plain stocks of white goods are worn with the tailored suits.

Print Fabrics Carry Over Into New Season

It is not often that a mode of one year carries over to another. But from every indication the vogue of printed fabrics, which attained such proportions last spring and summer, promises to be even greater this year. There is a difference, however, which applies not alone to the designs, but to the colorings.

In place of the rather grotesque and frequently ugly patterns of last summer are designs of great subtlety. Many hint at modernistic influences, others are adaptations from flowers and leaves, while from the point of view of originality few are of greater importance than designs which reproduce in soft colorings the patterns of stained-glass windows.

Brimless Felt Hat

There is a distinct trend toward the brimless hat, or one the brim of which is reduced to miniature proportions. These brimless hats are frequently made of two or more shades of felt. The tam-o'-shanters are usually of velvet and mounted on a band of brilliantly colored material of a contrasting shade or a matching band of felt.
